Why team collaboration?

Collaboration has always been important to help workers get business done. But now, with competition fiercer than ever, every advantage you can give your employees to work together more efficiently is vital.

When surveyed about reasons for investing in a Workstream Collaboration Solution:

- 56% to improve internal staff productivity
- 56% to improve team management
- 53% to improve project management

The workplace is full of collaboration tools that stifle, rather than unleash, the best teamwork.

- Fragmentation of tools
- Lack of true mobility
- Clarity connections between Unified Communication & Collaboration (UC&C) services
- Lack of integration with existing corporate systems

What teams need:

- All collaboration tools available from one place
- Consistent interface for workers at their desks or on their mobile devices
- Seamless experience that lets workers easily escalate into the most appropriate service depending on the exchange
- Integrated communications into systems and software that your teams are already using

Team collaboration is where organizations are heading.

Why Cisco Webex Teams?

Cisco Webex Teams is the team collaboration platform composed of a simple chat environment from which workers can call and schedule and start meetings. You can add documents, notes, and presentations all of which are visible to the entire team. Since all project-related information is in the same place, searching for a particular detail weeks or months down the road becomes much easier than sifting through old emails.

Webex Teams breaks down communication silos as all workers are accessed from the same interface. It decreases inbox clutter and allows teams to stay current on the latest developments of a project, even those who join at a project midpoint. Conversations and updates are synchronized in real-time across all devices so everyone in the office and away from it stays up to date.

Cisco Webex Teams provides a full suite of UC&C services—including telephony through Verizon Hosted Calling—it’s a solution that works for your teams however your workers wish to communicate with each other at any given moment.
